Gropper Law Group PLLC

Attorney Joshua Gropper considers his personal injury practice a calling – a calling driven by passion. Even before he graduated from Boston University School of Law in 1991, Gropper's career was shaped by his own family's tragedy. Gropper's younger brother lost all four limbs and was hospitalized for almost two years after getting trapped in a house fire that caused third-degree burns over 85 percent of his body. An active member of the Phoenix Society for Burn Survivors, Gropper founded the Nassau University Medical Center's SOAR (Survivors Offering Assistance in Recovery) program, where he still serves as Program Co-coordinator, reflecting his unyielding commitment to burn victims and their families. Doggedly Determined From Discovery Through Trial

Unlike other law firms that hand off their cases to trial counsel, Gropper and his team personally argue their clients' cases in court. "If we ultimately take a case to trial, nobody will outwork us or outspend us," says Gropper.

"We dig in right away, propose a course of action, and never hesitate to litigate simply because it would be easier to settle. Knowing that we won't fold under pressure brings clients incredible peace of mind."
